THE MOTHER'S PROBLEM

Of Raising Strong, Healthy Girls.
A serious problem which presents itself to every mother with girls to raise, in these days, is the exigencies of school life, the hurry and routine of every-day duties, the artificial environment of modern civilization, make it more difficult to raise strong, healthy girls than ever in the history of the world.

Boys raise themselves. Give them room, give them liberty, and they will grow up healthy at least, without much worrying. But the girls present a serious problem.

How many mothers there are who are worrying about their daughters. Nervous, puny girls, with poor, capricious appetites, bloodless, listless, a constant anxiety to the mother. How shall she solve her problem? To whom shall she turn for help? Each case is more or less a study by itself, and cannot be solved by any general rule.

This is the way one mother solved the problem. Mrs. Schopfer, 3023 Prospect Ave., St. Louis, Mo., in a letter to Dr. Hartman, says: "My daughter Alice, four years of age, was a puny, sickly, ailing child since she was born. I was always doctoring her. When we commenced to use Poruna she grew strong and well."

Another mother, Mrs. Martha Moss, R. F. D. 5, Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, says: "Our little eight-year-old girl had a bad cough, and was in a general run-down condition. She had several doctors, who could give the child no relief, and the mother no encouragement."

Finally, she got a bottle of Poruna and commenced giving it to the child, and it proved to be just what she needed. When she commenced taking Poruna the child had to be carried.

Now the mother says she is playing around all the time.

Her closing words were: "You have done a great deal for her. She is the only girl we have, and it means lots to us to have her cured."

These are samples of many letters which Dr. Hartman is receiving, coming straight from the hearts of loving mothers. While the different schools of medicine are bickering and differing as to theories and remedies, Poruna goes right to the heart of the matter, and after all, it is what the people want. Theories are of little account.

A PRETTY WEDDING HELD IN EDGERTON

Miss Ella Ford United in Marriage to William Marache Tuesday Morning.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Edgerton, May 5.—At nine o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church occurred the marriage of Miss Ella Ford and William Marache of Portage. They were attended by Miss Mary Ford and Dennis Ford, brother and sister of the bride. Rev. James Harlin performed the wedding ceremony. The church was well filled with friends of the contracting parties. After the ceremony the bridal party and their guests repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Ford, in Portage, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to one hundred guests. Mrs. D. Casey, grandmother of the bride, from Janesville and several Milwaukee friends attended the wedding. The happy couple have a large circle of friends who extend their congratulations. After a brief wedding trip they will be at home to their friends in Portage.

Mrs. Harry Keenan spent Tuesday with friends in Madison.

Dr. Harry Keenan was a Beloit visitor Tuesday.

Miss Hattie Lawrence returned to her home in Norwalk Tuesday evening, after spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. Elmer Herrell.

The funeral of the late David Condon was held at St. Joseph's church today at 10 o'clock. Rev. Father James Harlin held high mass over the remains. The church was filled with sorrowing friends, expressing the esteem in which the deceased was held in the community where he has lived so many years. The remains were tenderly laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their great bereavement.

Scott Hatch launched a new twenty-five-foot gasoline launch Tuesday in Rock river. The new boat is a perfect beauty and Mr. Hatch's many friends will be pleased to enjoy the many pleasant trips he is planning for them the coming summer on the beautiful Rock river.

DESIGNING GUNS TO COMBAT AIR SHIPS.
BRIGADIER GENERAL GROZIER, U. S. A.

Washington, — Brigadier General Grozier, U. S. A., is having special guns and gun carriage manufactured, which will allow the gun to be pointed at a sufficiently high angle to throw projectiles which will destroy balloons and air ships. His gun and carriage will be successful in taking up the tremendous recoil, caused by the extreme elevation of the gun.

FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE

PLAYING AT HYGIENE.

Did it ever occur to you that when you see children playing in the open air and romping in the sunshine they are playing hygiene, which means health?

If only we older people would throw dignity aside and play the game more than we do we would be much better off than we are.

To be sure, the game need not be as violent as "black man," "tag," or "three cornered cat," but long walks in the open air, tending a small garden or cultivating flowers instead of tin cans and rubbish in the back yard, would be pretty certain to produce good results in many ways.

SPECIAL FARES MADE TO THE EASTERN TRAVELERS

Lack of summer tourist travel on the eastern roads during the past few years, caused by the mistaken policy of those roads in not granting attractive rates, and by the fact that the western lines have been securing a much greater summer patronage than the eastern by granting of low rates to the Pacific Coast and Colorado, has caused the eastern lines to wake up and this summer residents of the middle west will have a chance to go to New York for a fare and a third for round trip. This is the first time reduced rates have ever been granted to New York City and will doubtless attract many travelers who might have gone west had not the rates been given. The ruling goes into effect June 1.

In order to offset these reduced rates on eastern trips, the western roads have added new privileges to their regular fare and excursion trips to the coast and intermediate points. Stop-over privileges of ten days, at Chicago, Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Mo., Omaha, and St. Paul and Minneapolis, to take effect May 22, have been granted on all one way tickets reading via those points on both the Chicago and North-Western and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul roads. Stop-over privileges of ten days will be granted going and returning at the same points on round trip tickets, except that on summer tourist tickets bearing final limit October 31, 1909, stop-over of thirty days will be granted on the return trip. As has been customary, the stop-over on round trip tickets will not extend the final limit, within which the passenger must reach the original starting point.

Circulars embodying these new changes have been received at both of the local stations, including the Yellowstone Park and Pacific Coast tariffs. Before these changes were made, no stop-over privileges were granted on either one way or round-trip regular fare tickets, although the special rate tickets had them. The advantages of these changes can easily be seen in that a passenger purchasing his regular round-trip or one way ticket to the coast, can now check his baggage through to his destination and have the privilege of stopping over at any of the points mentioned above, both going out and coming back.

Chicago & North-Western Ry. The engine on train 514 was not taken off at Janesville this morning, but went through on account of engine 101 being in the house for repairs. Because of this, it was necessary to use engine 177 on 528 in place of 101.

Uncle Sam Says Don't Eat

Bleached Flour Bread

The U. S. Government, through its Expert Pure Food Department, has made a ruling that all flour bleached is in direct violation of the National Pure Food Laws, and it has served a general notice that all flour now made after a bleaching process must conform to the Pure Food requirements (be unbleached) within a short time or it will not be permitted to be sold.

The bleaching process is done with peroxide of nitrogen. Thus a low grade and inferior wheat can be used and the difference is not discernible to the ordinary consumer. This practice cannot be construed otherwise than to deceive the public into buying an inferior baking flour.

MARVEL Flour is made, and always has been made, from the highest grade hard wheat, the most perfect grown. It is not bleached, or ever has been, and our mill does not have to be compelled to alter its method of flour production to comply with the law. Why bake your bread from a flour which the Government says is made in violation of its Pure Food laws? Why wait to secure a pure and perfect flour, made from a high grade wheat, milled after the most sanitary and health-giving mode of natural milling? If you bake your own bread demand of your grocer MARVEL Flour. If he cannot supply you send us his name and we'll see that he does. If you use Baker's bread, be sure and know that it is made from unbleached flour. Ask for bread baked and made from MARVEL Flour. It cost no more and is absolutely pure—of this you may be certain.

Listman Mill Co., La Crosse, Wis.

Our record for the purity of our MARVEL Flour is one to be proud of. We stand alone today as the only large mill in the U. S. that has never made a bleached flour.

Mrs. Upton was interested and recommended that she get a furnished room at a nearby house. She told the landlady that she was Reba Wheeler, from Providence, and paid $1.50 for the rent of the room until May 1.

Adela left her boarding house Sunday morning, apparently with the intention of going to work at the restaurant. On her way to the restaurant she got a glimpse of her own picture in one of the Boston papers, with headlines announcing a $5,000 reward. Instead of going to the restaurant she hurried to the station and bought a ticket to New York. This left her with only a few cents in her pocketbook. She was recognized by several different persons during her trip home and her family advised of her return. As soon as her relatives caught the tired little "stranger" as the train pulled into the station, they went into raptures. The girl ran into the arms of her uncle. A telephone message was sent from the station to the home in West Eighty-eighth street, where Mr. Boas had given up hope of the Boston clew.

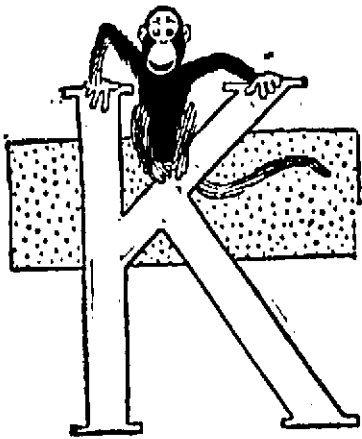

As soon as he heard the glad news of his daughter's return he paced up and down the street waiting for her. "My dear, my dear," he exclaimed, catching the girl in his arms when she arrived. Tears were streaming down her cheeks as he carried her into the house. Mrs. Boas was standing at the top of the stairs. The sight of her daughter was too much for her and she fainted.

The girl was immediately put to bed and the family physician declared that besides being fatigued she had suffered absolutely no harm from her experience.

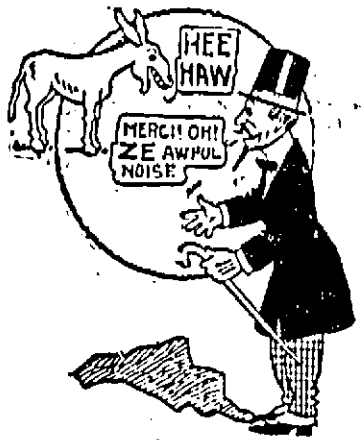

The girl herself took her absence from home as a joke, but Mr. Boas has not intimated what he is going to do about the reward.

Heart-to-Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

(Copyright, 1905, by American Press Association.)

ANSWER THE TELEPHONE!

A writer tells about a rural telephone line out in Wallonia, in interior Oregon, which reaches back some sixty miles into the scanty settlements of the countryside.

The line meanders through the canyons, over the foothills, into the forests, along the isolated sheep ranches, farm and sawmills and on to the county seat.

It is a cheap line, of course, and it is almost impossible to carry on a conversation over the whole line.

And so—

Each family is a sort of relay station. That is to say, the families living on the outmost edges of the settlement call up a family near to the town, and the message is repeated to another family, and so on until the town is reached.

It is a fixed custom that the message or order to merchant, stock buyer or physician be repeated through the two or three relays so that every word may be understood.

One signal, that for the physician, is three rings.

It is the signal that every patron of the line is alert to answer. Whether it be morning, noon or midnight, when the call for the doctor comes every family on the line goes to the telephone to learn who is in need.

The message for the doctor is speeded quickly on its way. Then the nearest neighbors go immediately to the relief of the sick or injured.

And when "central" gets the call for the physician one is called, and he starts immediately on his long, hard ride.

It is the call of humanity.

Well—

Let us say what is true—that you and I are connected upon life's long telephone line. In some places it is a "weak line." We must help out by repeating the messages.

The call to rescue comes over the line. It will die out if we do not take down the receiver and ring the urgent message down the wires.

Let us listen especially for the three rings.

Some one is wounded, helpless, sick in body or mind or heart. Send the call on to central for the Great Physician. But—

Let us, the neighbors, go.

Let us keep in touch with the throbbing line that tells of the struggling, suffering world and heed the human call.

Adoption of Metric System.

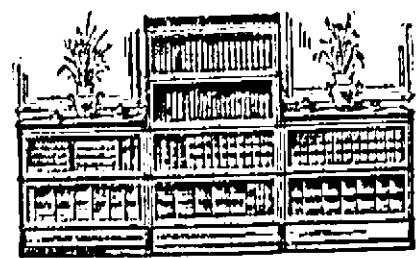

The first European nation to adopt the metric system of weights and measures was France. This was in 1790, and was followed by Holland in 1816, by Belgium in 1820, and by Sweden in 1839.

Day by Day

Little by Little

The old worn-out cells are rebuilt slowly but surely when the change is made from Coffee to

POSTUM

Nature requires time to rebuild. This cannot be done instantly. But each day progress can be seen.

The change to Postum is not hard because the flavor of well-boiled Postum is similar to that of mild Java and it quickly wins its own way.

The aches and ills (caused from coffee) cease and the pure food elements of Postum bring out the glow-of-health in place of the muddy coffee complexion.

The change is worth while.

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

MORE THAN EVER Increased Capacity for Mental Labor Since Leaving off Coffee.

Many former coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform, day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of ordinary coffee.

An ill woman writes, "I had drunk coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'Coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely dependent; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation.

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady.

"Then I became less dependent, and the desire to be active again, showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength.

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard mental labor with less fatigue than ever before."

TARIFF DISCUSSION

The general demand for an early settlement of the tariff question, in the interests of business, influenced the house to railroad through the Payno bill, with but little regard to its provisions, and when this measure went over to the senate a month ago, and was practically endorsed, by the upper house, the notion pre-valled that before the first of June the whole question would be settled.
About the only changes made by the senate was to restore the Dingley rate on hosiery, and this was brought about by a general protest by the women of the land. There was a disposition on the part of the Aldrich committee to rush the measure through the senate, in answer to the demands for an early settlement of the question, and so the bill recommended sought to secure revenue, rather than revision, and the injustice and inequalities were largely ignored.

The program might have been carried out but for the fact that Senator Dolliver of Iowa decided that the people were not getting a fair deal, and that party pledges were not being fulfilled. In the light of some revelations brought out by the town senator yesterday the people will be content to wait for the new tariff schedule, until congress recognizes the importance of revision downward.
Senator Dolliver is not a reformer nor an extremist. Like his former colleagues, the late Senator Allison of Iowa, he represents the conservative element in the senate. More than this, he is as familiar with the tariff schedules as Senator Aldrich, as he served on committees with Congressman Dingley.

He is not a new man in the senate and what he has to say carries weight and conviction, so when he pointed out some of the loopholes in the woolen schedule, the senators sat up and took notice, while the people realized that they had a friend in court.

It is not surprising that in a schedule so intricate as a tariff schedule that some inconsistencies should develop, but it is surprising that congress, knowing of these inconsistencies, should ignore them.

Senator Dolliver has taken it upon himself to point out some of these inconsistencies, so that the people may understand. In discussing the tariff on woolen goods, he said:
"There is a section of the present law, which becomes section 278 of the Aldrich bill, which provides that on clothing really made, and articles of wearing apparel of every description, including shawls, whether knitted or woven, and knitted articles of every description, made up or manufactured wholly or in part, felt not woven and not especially provided for in this section, composed wholly or in part of wool, the duty per pound shall be four times the duty imposed by this section on one pound of unwashed wool of the first class, and in addition thereto 60 per cent ad valorem."

this section, as Senator Dolliver explained to the amusement of his colleagues, a pair of rubber boots, which are lined always with wool or felt, first of all was assessed 41 cents a pound on the theory that they are woolen manufactures and then 65 per cent ad valorem because they are wearing apparel.
"This is only one instance and not an extreme one, of the way in which the tariff has been manipulated, and the people, particularly of the west, are just beginning to see that the present revision instead of reducing rates is either maintaining them at the old standard for increasing them, and that the Aldrich bill proposes to re-enact all the worst and trickiest features of the present tariff law."

"Senator Dolliver's brilliant speech has opened the eyes of a great many senators and there is scarcely any doubt that it will contribute to a material lowering of the Aldrich rates before the senate is through with the bill."

THE FRENCHMAN'S INVEST-MENTS

"If you were a Frenchman with a very small surplus to invest; if, even, that surplus were but a modest franc, you might become the holder of a French government bond. From the cradle to the grave the French subject is taught to save and to turn his earnings into safe income-producing account. The state pays a premium on thrift. It rewards its school children for various good performances with a tiny bank deposit which, invariably, will have grown into goodly size when the recipient has reached maturity. Having nursed its people through the early stages of economy it directs their steps in the choice of investments, and even assumes internal power in arbitrarily transforming the savings bank account into government bonds, or rentes. Thrift is a national characteristic. France is a nation of little savers, of little income, and of little farms. Collectively, these exercise a tremendous power on the affairs of Europe. The holder of the one- or two-franc bond and the possessor of the bank account, so small that bankers of other countries would scorn it, have built up a monetary power that commands the respect of the world, and, indeed, regulates the finances and politics of much more presumptuous nations."

"Bonds of states and governments, of railroads with a government guarantee, bonds of cities and towns, of mortgage companies, are the Frenchman's choice. His portfolio contains the most varied collection of government securities imaginable. It is safe to say that, in Paris, coupons are cut from the bonds of nearly every government under the sun. Too often the Frenchman gambles and loses in mining shares. He will have none of his own country's industrial issues."

A writer in a late magazine thus talks about the habits of thrift and economy, practiced by the citizens of his sister republic, across the sea.
France is indeed a nation of little savers, and while the nation is burdened with debt, the bonds are largely held by her own people. If America, with her opportunities for earning, would adopt and practice the same habits of economy, the heads of socialism, so far as distribution of wealth is concerned, would be fully met.

WIRELESS ON THE LAKES

Wireless telegraphy will soon be as popular on the Great Lakes as on the high seas, as all vessels of any importance are equipped, and land stations installed. In some of the larger cities tall buildings are being utilized.

A case in point is the Milwaukee station of the United Wireless Telegraph Co. on the Pabst brewery. The location of this brewery building being favorable, an arrangement was made by the telegraph company not only to install the apparatus on top of the building but to use the electric current from the brewery's plant at a very low rental.

In recognition of the public spirit shown by Col. Gustavo Pabst in providing these conveniences, the messages from the station to the vessels on Lake Michigan will be dated "From Pabst, Milwaukee, Wisconsin."

The anthracite coal roads will breathe easier, now that the United States supreme court has decided just what are their rights as mine-owners.
No plan has yet been discovered whereby the government can own and operate the coal and iron mines, and it is just as well that the scheme is abandoned. Private capital and enterprise are necessary to development.

The fact has developed that the Chicago banks will sustain a loss of $9,000,000 by coming to the people's rescue when the Walsh banks failed some two or three years ago. The potion of the banks at that time saved a panic and loss of confidence which might have meant more than the figures quoted. The banks are to be commended for wise action.

Mr. Bryan says he is in politics to stay, and that means that he will have to be considered as a leader.
The democratic party is certainly op-titled to sympathy.

TREED.

The wuxwux sat on his great hind legs,
And looked o'er the top of the tree;
The flapperub turned a quick somersault

When he heard the somersault swoosh,
The rammerjock piked for the forest depths, While the razzibit mourned his fate.
An althridrik flew, and the plibb, too, Fifty leagues from the Congo State.
The shuvelo dug deep down in the ground,

To get far out of harm's way;
The wixzywit climbed to the topmost tree,
And hid himself night and day.
The flilbab swam far out to sea,
The dovo for the depths below;
And the flizwuck shook with a hount-ed look,
While the whimylek died of woo.

A reign of terror swept jungleland, Then the sun refused to come out; The limbs of the trees all shook with fear,
And the Kaffir king had the gout, And the great glabbernecker and the Mullikumb,
When they saw those runs and shoes.
Just fell with a jar at the feet of
T. R., And murmured: "O, what's the use?"

Everything comes out all right—sorrows are but bubbles! Now we know that Jeff will fight, none are all our troubles! Let the blooming scoundrel make his worst endeavor: or, let the tariff thinkers take on and on forever: let the Balkan war-cloud work like their wheels a-running; let the garlic-scented Turks do their stunt of cunning; let the British voter croak o'er his country's navy; from the Big and Dusky Smoke, Jeff will knock the gravy! Joy at last has come to keep carnival with reason; too much Johnson made us weep for a little season; too much Johnson kept our rage over flower waxen; we deplored the vanished age of the Anglo-Saxon, but again our hearts are light, and the skies are sunny; Jeff announces that he'll fight—for a bunch of money.

Keep Cheerful.

From a scientific standpoint a cheerful temper is better than medicine or gold. It tones the system. It gives one a sane outlook on life. But the grouch, physiologically and psychical-ly, is dangerous.

LIVELY CONTEST ON BRIDGE QUESTION

Vote Yesterday in Town of La Prairie May Not Have Settled Matter After All.
Residents of the towns of La Prairie and Turtle are at sea over the proposition to build a bridge across the Turtle creek near the station at Shoppers. The town board of La Prairie voted not to, and then the matter was put to a town vote yesterday, and according to figures received from the seat of war today the proposition was defeated by a vote of thirty-two against fifty-four. Those who favor the bridge claim the matter is not to end here and another election is talked of. The bridge would take the place of the old ford and would cost about four thousand dollars.

Monday morning and yesterday morning at the opening exercises of the high school, Miss Armstrong, instructor in physical geography and botany, gave the pupils a very interesting talk on the Yellowstone Park. The address was given in connection with the presentation of a picture to the school by Miss Armstrong's physical geography classes. The picture is a handsome view of the Yellowstone from Artist's Point. In her talk Miss Armstrong gave a very graphic description of the beautiful sights of the national reserve. The picture has been placed in the science room of the school.

SEASON WAS OPENED BY INTERMEDIATES

Tigers Beaten by Sox in Game at Athletic Park Last Evening.
Other Y. M. C. A. Notes.
The baseball season of the intermediate class was opened yesterday afternoon at Athletic Park in a game between the Sox and the Tigers. Numerous errors on the part of the Tiger players caused them to lose the game, the final score being 7 to 2. Good playing on the part of the Sox helped to bring up their score.
In the basketball games of the 11 Juniors, Blodgett's team won the championship, with R. E. Hilde's five only one game behind. Carl Fieck's basketball players were the victorious ones in that line of sport.
The Business Men's class will play a game of basketball with a team picked from a class of Edgerton businessmen. The contest will be held at Edgerton a week from Friday night.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT HELD IN EAU CLAIRE

Old Soldiers Gather in June—Eight Wisconsin Regiment to Hold Reunion.

June 15, 16, 17 and 18, in Eau Claire, will be held the annual encampment of the state of Wisconsin department of the G. A. R., at which representatives of all the posts in the state will be present. The indications are for a record-breaking attendance at this meeting as there will be many regimental and brigade reunions. One of particular interest in this city is a reunion of the Eighth Wisconsin regiment. This regiment was one of the most renowned of the regiments that fought during the war, as it was Company "C" of this regiment which carried "Old Abe," the famous war eagle, and was "dubbed" (The Eagle Company). This regiment served under both Grant and Sherman.
The colonel of this noted regiment at the end of the war, was Col. W. H. Britton, of Janesville. The colonel is now living, but is bed-ridden. The band of men that he led served under Grant and Sherman and formed part of Sherman's corps at the siege of Vicksburg and fought in some of the greatest battles of the war. Janesville contributed a number of men to this regiment but the greater part of those have passed away or moved from the city. Of those now living are, David Conger, a lieutenant in Company G; David Lawrence; and Edward James of California, who is now visiting in the city; and C. W. Robinson of the town of Janesville.
The encampment at Eau Claire is the regular yearly session at which the old soldiers and their wives gather to talk over old times and mourn the loss of the comrades who have answered the last roll-call.
The local post will send delegates and alternates to the meeting and besides these a number of others are expected in attendance.
The angle which accompanied the regiment during the war, was stuffed and preserved after its death and put in the capital building, but when the fire occurred there he was burned with a number of other relics.

JANESVILLE LADIES

Are quite enthusiastic over the cooking demonstration by Mrs. Hensel, who is instructing the people in the mysteries of good bread and cake making by using Marvel flour, a Wisconsin production. The attendance is increasing daily, and yesterday extra chairs had to be provided for the ladies. It is a very attractive place in all respects. The demonstrations are given every afternoon at 109 West Milwaukee street. The time, needless to say, does not drag while Mrs. Hensel is giving her interesting talks and explaining the different ingredients used and the offices they perform. Each guest is served with coffee, tea or cocoa and a sample of the cake, bread, or whatever is being demonstrated.
The room is made attractive and comfortable and is really an interesting and instructive place to spend a few hours of an afternoon.
Practical household economy is of great interest to all good housekeepers. Mrs. Hensel gives recipes and demonstrates their use for everyday cooking in the clearest and most concise manner.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Party for Miss Andre: Last evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Lawrence, Mrs. Margaret Huggs entertained forty young ladies at a party given in honor of Miss Margaret Andre, whose wedding occurs next Thursday. FIRST DEGREE WORK BY THE ODD FELLOWS Local Lodge Number 90 Had About Two Hundred Guests at West Side Hall Last Night.

About two hundred Odd Fellows assembled last evening at the West Side hall to witness the degree work by the local team. This number included, besides the local lodges, many from out of town, among them twenty-three from Evansville, who brought with them a candidate for the first degree. The degree was given by the drill team of local lodge number 90, who exhibited a number of new drills in their work. This, the first exhibition of their drills was very novel and evenly done and was a credit to the drill team. Following the degree work, the company repaired to the supper rooms of the lodge, where a tempting repast was served by the members of the local lodge.
Further plans and preparations are being made for the meeting here in June which it is expected will be attended by about fifteen hundred people. Of these, over eight hundred will be delegates from each lodge in the state, so that a large assemblage is expected here at that time. Degree work by some team will be given on every night of the session.

Talk No. 7.

By Brittingham & Hixon Lumber Co.

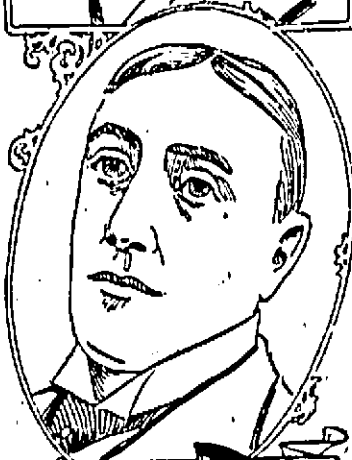

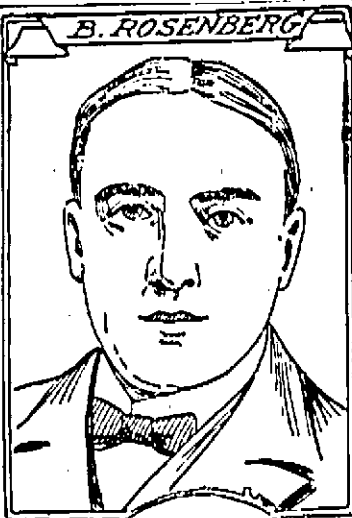

Keep the Business in Janesville

A farmer that lived about eight miles from Janesville recently went to Chicago to get a price on a bill of material to build a barn. In talking to a contractor during a visit to our office, he said that he had been to Chicago and while at the office of one of the largest mail order houses, he was particularly impressed by the number of customers who called to complain. No particular effort was made to satisfy their complaints, their efforts seemed devoted entirely to showing the immensity of their plant and trying to impress customers with the fact of their being large. Their favorite phrase seemed to be that the grade of their material would be "up to specifications." True, it may be up to specifications, but the average customer does not know specifications and even if the material was below specifications, what recourse would he have after having paid for it? And he must pay before he can receive material from a mail order house. However, he left the bill there to be figured and had his local dealer figure it also. He found the dealer was about $40.00 lower than Chicago.

The fact is that the general practice of the mail order house is to cut the price particularly low on a few items to give the impression that they are low on EVERYTHING, whereas on an average bill they are not lower than local dealers, though they make claim after claim that the local dealers are robbing the public. There has been a feeling that it was useless to let local dealers figure on lumber bills, and to our knowledge, many bills have been furnished at prices higher than we would have asked for the same goods had we an opportunity to make an estimate.

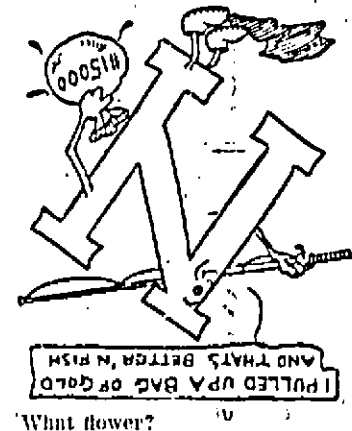

We wish to say that we will bid COMPETITIVELY against local dealers, mail order houses and scalpers, and that our prices will hold the business to Janesville that rightly belongs here. Our method will be PRICE only, but our quality will be better, our service quicker and our treatment more courteous, and we will be right here to adjust any difficulties that may come to you while building.

May we have an opportunity to bid on your next bill?

Rainy Day Thoughts.

"When I used to live in the west," said the New York woman, "there seemed to be a good excuse for the rain. Whenever it rained we said:
'How fine it will be for the crops,' and stayed indoors gladly, but here in New York there's no earthly excuse for its raining day after day, and the shops so full of beautiful things we would like to buy."

SOCIAL UNION
LADIES' NIGHT

BANQUET CLOSED EIGHTH SEA-SON LAST EVENING.

FAIR SEX GENTLY GRILLED

In Retaliation for Mere Man's Awful Roasting a Year Ago—Hemingway Incident Dextrously Avoided.

The Social Union club closed its eighteenth season at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening, with one of the most enjoyable seasons in the history of the organization. It was Ladies' Night and covers were laid for the fair ones and their hosts numbering 225. There were dainty souvenir menu cards, embossed with a spray of arbutus tied with a gilt-edged blue ribbon, and white and red roses at every plate. From its colony of vantage on the small stage at the north end of the hall, the Janesville Symphony orchestra, conducted by Prof. J. S. Taylor, not only acknowledged the opening of festivities with a stirring march but also played with distinction, at intervals throughout the evening, a splendid program from the classics and popular composers. The other musical numbers included four fine selections from the Malinquinette composed of Prof. Taylor, E. E. Van Pool, L. P.
Lahr, and Arthur Schoof, and two pleasing duets by Miss Maude Brace and Mr. Van Pool.

Where the Worm Turns A year ago the program was entirely in the hands of the ladies and "Mere Man" was grilled to a turn.
This time "Woman" was the subject and retaliation, the watchword. "Tonight—brothers—we how to Her Royal Highness—respectfully, but we've got to do it," was Leader Frank A.
Taylor's "opening" for the "feast of reason" which followed the delicious supper. "They say that last year the whole disturbance was started by our city disturber, Charles Hemingway, but we'll let that pass. Retaliation has overtaken him elsewhere and, anyway, we hope to preserve here a semblance of the calm, judicial spirit, free from suggestion of man's violence. Man is a worm, and the little old fellow in the back row—woman is the early bird." The leader then quoted the toast which ends "Here's to women who are speechless—but they're dead," and tributes variously imputed to Tennyson and Henry Van Dyke, also paying his respects to the woman who thinks it is a hard duty to get up at 10 p. m. and let her husband in, but without complaint arises at 2 a.
m. to let the cat out. The episode of the old gentleman who changed his mind about giving up his seat in the crowded street car to Mrs. Spouter, the suffragist, telling her that if she wanted the privileges of man to "stand up and enjoy them," was also submitted for what it was worth.
But, H. C. Bell, who was to toast
"The Twentieth Century Woman," was introduced as "Janesville's Jolly old pedagogue."

"Twentieth Century Woman" Mr. Bell narrated the trend of events by which it had come to pass that the ladies, instead of receiving the attention of one speaker at the Ladies' night banquets, had captured the entire program. The character and humiliation experienced by the men in being regarded instead of toasted at their own banquet board a year ago had been so deep that there had not been a single marriage within the club since that time. The Twentieth Century woman, however, was entitled to new start, the century being only nine years old, and the little Miss of nine was a bird of promise who might be expected to blossom into the ideal of womanhood. That the follies of the 18th century woman would be left far behind, the speaker had no doubt. Such anecdotes as the one relating to the man who hadn't spoken to his wife for six months and when the neighbors remonstrated said that he really didn't feel like interrupting her, would have no application to the beautiful flower of promise. She was not going to insist upon having her own way or the last word and there would be no occasion for ill-natured retorts such as the one made by the man who refused to dismount with his cigar in the smoking car. The strong-minded woman said: "Sir, if I were your wife I'd give you poison." "Madam," he gravely replied, "if I were your husband I'd take poison." The nineteenth century, with its inventions, had emancipated woman from drudgery and placed at her disposal unlimited time. That she had failed to make the best use of this sudden acquisition was not to be wondered at.
But in the 20th century, less attention would be given to mere externals such as personal adornments and social diversions and the great ideal of service—the conviction that the real grace and beauty of life lies in making the most of what one can give rather than what one can get—would be realized.

Woman's Destiny
In introducing Louis P. Rahr, who was to tell of "The Destiny of Woman," the leader could not refrain from telling the story of Splinter Jane who wished the sympathetic to "save their pity," as she had a dog that roared, a lamp that smoked, a parrot that swore, and a cat that staid out nights. He also produced a Shakespearean question that "great" and the next speaker was presented with a room of laughter. Mr. Rahr delved into history to show that every cycle had given the world women whose labors for the people's good had been quite as effective as those of men, and he dwelt at some length on the purifying influence that had exerted in every field of endeavor. Man, today, in choosing a life partner, was bewildered by the multiplicity of Jewels about him, and the woman of the future would not permit her light to be hidden under a bushel, 1000 millions nodding to the contrary, notwithstanding. The days of clubs had passed and woman was now won by sweetness and ice-cream sodas, she wanted tenderness, also, but only during the courtship days. Afterwards it is entirely a question of legal tender. Man can have everything on the instalment plan but a wife—he gets her for nothing but has to pay for it in the end. The speaker hoped that man would never quite be driven from the home and he found comfort in the declaration of such eminent authorities as Martha Clay and John Wheeler Wilson that "man must ever be the arbiter of woman's destiny."

"The Suffragette"
In introducing Rev. Joseph C. Henrich, who was to discuss "The Suffragette," the leader found an answer to the classic question, "What's in a name?" in the fact that the American Woman's Suffrage movement was none other than Mrs. Harriet Carpenter Catt. He also related the story of the preacher's solemn admonition to the Deacon to have the church warm as there would be no use of his preaching on "Hell"—when the very thought of it was comfortable.
The Rev. Mr. Henrich in opening outlined the difficulties the "suffragette" in proposing an address sufficiently battering to woman-kind to suit the mistress of the manse. The result of his listening to the stern voices of the program committee he likened to the city lad who permitted himself, just for fun, to be yoked with a young bullock—"he hadn't made more than two or three lumps before he saw his mistake." The word "suffragette" might remind one in appearance and odor of the cigarette, but it was not by no means the same. The speaker from it. He believed in them. The ladies gave their time entirely to settling up the fumes started by the fair sex and they furnished him out of ten of the physicians' cases, with the tenth one paying the tolls. His own profession was given over completely to an effort to please the ladies. In the face of justice and good reasoning, since they had conquered the entire universe, was it fair to keep woman out of politics?
Rather say: "Come in and help yourself!" Might as well say so, for she would do it anyway.

THE VALUE OF PROPRIETARY MEDICINES

is proven by the very large percentage of physicians' prescriptions for the same remedies found in every drug store in America, but as they are written in Latin, few patients realize this fact.

The old standard proprietary medicines like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that have stood the test of time, deserve a place in every family medicine chest, and it is most certain they would not be prescribed by physicians if they were able to devise a formula equally as efficacious.

Kills them all

Leave any and they will soon over-run you again. In one year two rats will produce 800. Rat Bis-Kit gets them all. They will leave the choicest food for it and die outside seeking water. Keep it on hand. Put it around your kitchen every two months. Instantly kills off what you have and those that come to you from other places. It is dry, clean, needs no mixing or spreading on food. You simply put it where you want them to get it. Get it today, 15c a box at all drugstores. Farmers note: Government reports show that the loss from rats each year is more than all the taxes paid on farm lands. Rid yourself of these pests. Rat Bis-Kit THE RAT BISCUIT CO., SPRINGFIELD, O.

You needn't answer, Mr. Pratt. He pays your salary, I believe.

"My, but she said it bitter and scornful. Hartley was white as a sheet, but now he was like chalk. He bowed to her, stuck his chin into the air and marched out of that house as proud and chilly as a walking icicle. The rest of us, all but Van and Agnes, trailed along after him, like a parcel of kicked dogs.

Washy sung out to us as we went: "Good day, gentlemen," he says; "I hope you'll come and see me sometimes while I'm over to Horsefoot. I forgive you free and clear. I haven't no doubt you meant for the best."

The doctor and the rest was brave enough when we was out of Agnes Page's sight and hearing. They was talking big about what they'd do to Sparrow when they had a chance, but I noticed none of 'em said much to Hartley. He marched ahead, stiff and white and glum. Peter Brown's last word to me was this:

"Pratt," says he, "if you see a hole in the sand anywhere 'tween here and the beach, mark my name around it, will you? The way I feel now I'd like to crawl into it and pull it after me. One about the size of a ten-cent piece would do, and even then I guess there'd be room and to spare for the rest of this gang."

When I got down to the skiff Van comes running to catch up. He caught me by the arm and hauled me to one side.

"Skipper," says he, "what the devil's the matter?"

I told him in as few words as I could. He roared. "That's all right," he says. "I'll fix that."

He went over to his chum and slapped him on the back.

"Brace up, old man," he says. "It's a mistake, and a mighty good joke on you, isn't it? Of course I'll square you with Agnes."

Hartley turned on him so quick that he jumped.

"If you please," says Martin, cutting and clear as a razor, "you will perhaps be good enough to mind your own business. If you mention one word concerning me to that lady you and I part company. Is that thoroughly plain?"

"Was the first time I'd ever heard them two have a hard word. The trip to Ozono Island was as joyful as a funeral."

CHAPTER XV.
The White Plague.

The first was all in the fire. Hartley's great scheme that he thought was going to help Eureka, and that I called would be a more big boost for him in the Page girl's eyes, had gone to pot to see the little blue. Instead of getting rid of Papa Sparrow, it had fetched that old hypocrite right over to eat and sleep and groan under our very noses. And, instead of helping Martin's love business, it had knocked the keel right out of it and left him stranded with a bigger reputation than ever for cold-blooded, mercenary money-grabbing. Sweet mess, wasn't it?

I shun, I did hate to tell Eureka! And yet of course she was bound to find it out herself. When she went home that night, I thought: "I'll catch it to-morrow morning." And, sure enough, next morning she was laying for me.

She came out to the garden, where I was trying to fool myself into hoping that six inches of green string, with a leaf or two hung along it, might bear a cucumber some day, and down she sets in the heap of dry seaweed by the pig pen.

"Now, then," says she, sharp, "I want to know all about it."

"Oh!" says I, looking innocent at the cucumber string; "I ain't give up hope, by no manner of means. If the loam don't blow off, and I'm able to lug water enough, we'll have as much as one jar of two-inch pickles off this plantation by the time the Heavens fall are ready to quit."

"Humph!" she sniffs. "You ought to pickie that understanding of yours. It's too fresh and green to keep long."

Tossed All Night?

It's pretty tough, isn't it, when you can't sleep at night? You feel a long way from next day and as a consequence your work suffers. It's an expensive business—is this in somnolence.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

"Your hair is ravest gold," he cried; "You are the girl I've picked."

But after they were married he soon found he'd been gold-bricked.

Find him.

Hartley seemed to have caught the disease. I saw him and Nate looking mysterious at each other and talking together in out of the way places time and time again. And the mail was getting heavier and there was half burned telegram envelopes in the stove ashes more'n once. But nobody ever mentioned getting a telegram.

There was so much reading matter 'round the place now that Eureka was in her glory. She read when she got breakfast, with a book propped up on the kitchen table. She read when she dusted, holding the dust cloth in one hand and a magazine in the other. She read when she ate. She went upstairs at night reading; and I wouldn't wonder if she read in her sleep.

Washy had been pretty decent, for him, for the first week after he landed in his new quarters. But his decency didn't last long. He began to fuss and find fault and groan and growl. Miss Page sent him nice things to eat—and he always ate 'em every speck himself—and medicine, which he took about a spoonful of and then said 'twasn't helping him none and give it up. He yelled for Eureka every few minutes and she'd have to drop her work and run and wait on him. He was a peaky outrage and everybody hated him, including Van, who said that he was a common nuisance and if 'twasn't for his promise to Agnes he'd abate him with a shot-gun.

One day Eureka comes out on the porch where the Heavens was setting, and says she:

"Mr. Van Brunt, would you and Mr. Hartley be willing for me to cure pa?"

"Cure him?" asks Van, surprised. "Cure him? Yes, indeed. Or kill him, either," he adds, under his breath.

Birthplace of the American Protective Association and its founder, Col. Henry F. Bowers.

Clinton, Iowa.—Among Clinton's most prominent residents is Col. Henry F. Bowers, who was the founder of the organization known as the American Protective Association, and who at the age of 72 years still makes this city his home. Col. Bowers is a native of Baltimore, but came to Iowa at an early day. He has a wide acquaintance throughout the United States.

The American Protective association was organized on the evening of March 13, 1887, in the Toll House, a company of six or seven Clinton gentlemen assembled and bickering into being the society which was destined to sweep the country, and create more strife and bitter feeling than any other society had done since the day of the "Do Nothings."

His native state's support of sectarian schools, and neglect of the free public schools, Col. Bowers states, deprived him of an early education and when he came to Iowa in 1857, he devoted much time to a study of the question of the schools and the state. This question, he declares, was the real motive behind the so-called A. P. A. In a very few years the order had not only spread throughout the United States, but had bridged the encompassing oceans, and found lodgment in the British Isles, France, Germany, Armenia, and even in China and Japan.

The platform of the order condemned support of sectarian schools out of the public treasury; declared exemption from taxation of property not vested in the government; and demanded seven years' residence to acquire citizenship, and protection

What Happened to Alice.

"What became of Alice Green who came from Pittsboro, Pa., to New York to make her mark in the world?" asked some visitors at an art school. "She was going to do such wonders in New York."

"I think," answered a pupil, who had known Alice Green, "that she walked in front of a surface car she thought was going the other way."

Forty Years Ago

reaching his home late last night, Sheriff Johnson discovered a man prowling about his house, trying to make his way in. On being discovered, the stranger made tracks and Mr. Stone after him. The race was an exciting one for a short time, as the pursuer was gradually gaining on the pursued but the stranger being quite nimble of foot and remarkably long-winded, his pursuer began to grow weary and thus he lost sight of the stranger who disappeared in the darkness. Mr. Stone is building an addition to his house, and as is usual in such cases, some of the doors and windows were not the most difficult to enter, which fact the scamp was undoubtedly aware of.

Social Union Ladies' Night

Woman as Man's Pilot fairly sparkled with humor and the rare feeling and sympathy with which he read such poems as Kilgill's "Vampire," Corbin Maxims of Italy, and a whole lot of snappy little poems, made his address one of the most enjoyable of the evening. He said he would take his text from the great German poet, Holme—"Woman, woman, much must be forgiven thee; thou hast loved much and many." His own faith in woman, lovely woman, was flourishing on youthful simplicity and innocence, but he had been advised on the subject and cognate of the many pilots around him, he would proceed to "pilot" on. The first pilot that guided him through a panorama of hard-earned and hoary that had no joy for him, until, between the fog of childish displeasure, he learned that even a humpback has its function, received the first tribute. The ancient Greeks knew all about it when they formed the word man from a term meaning "being with his face toward the light" and the word woman from the her numerous characteristics to play upon, some of our leading journalists would have to go out of business. To her influence we owe, among other things, some of our greatest systems of philosophy. The fair Xanthippe made Socrates so miserable that he had to resort to philosophy to live. Socrates would never have been heard from had she not exerted just the right influence. If woman is in the lead, man must take the rear, and it's mighty unlikely woman who doesn't look good from the back."

"Why We Admire Them." President William C. Daland of Milton College declared that to perform the task assigned to him would be like dissecting the beauty of the violet or the lily, or putting into the chemist's crucible the spring morning, or trying to analyze the nervous excitations that produce a deed or heroism. He would have to fall back on the explanation of the boy who wanted to go fishing—"he was simply made that way." All of his predecessors who had spoken slightly of the ladies had tried to "smooth it over" and "get aboard" at the end. Whether man were the lords of creation or the corner clay fashioned to minister to woman's refinement, whether they were masters or slaves, were perhaps problems that could not be solved. The same poet who declared that "in her we find our idea of heaven" at a later time was asked "Who laid the law in nature?" and several other leading historical questions and gave this answer to all of them: "Damnably, deceitful, destructive woman." The speaker was inclined to believe that her superior qualities were beyond man's reach and he dwelt at some length upon her beauty of feeling, thought, and character; her cleverness of mind and hand; her vivacity; her gentleness and kindness; her purity of thought, feeling, and motive; and her religion.
